

« How to include children and young people with autism spectrum disorders into the school environment? Inventions and needs »

Organized by the Foundation Atención Temprana (FAT)

10 April 2021

10:30 - 14:00

Online event

CONTEXT

The IREAMS project aims to improve the implementation of inclusive processes throughout education based on concrete experiences, instead of general protocols. Children and young persons with autism spectrum disorders need special support for their integration into the school environment so that their aspirations and interests are heard.

The conference will offer a time for exchange between the different actors who promote and accompany this vital project: education professionals, families and therapists.
